

SUMMER PROGRAMS

FOR HIGH SCHOOL TEACHERS

★ IN GREECE

“My summer program was one of the most intense and memorable learning experiences of my teaching career. The level of content knowledge I walked away with that summer has allowed me to serve student learning at a deeper level.”

— JEFFREY BASLER, Ohio High School Teacher

THE PROGRAM

The American School of Classical Studies at Athens offers a six-week intensive program in the history and archaeology of Greece from antiquity to the present, as well as shorter, 18-day programs on specific topics such as ancient technology, religion, and mythology. Generations of teachers have come to the American School to learn how material culture and literary evidence combine to provide a coherent and dynamic picture of antiquity.

MAKE NEW CONNECTIONS

Not only do teachers receive an immersive introduction to the archaeology and history of Greece, but they also have ample opportunity to connect with other teachers, graduate students and university-based researchers from across North America and beyond. The American School is your gateway to an international network of students and scholars sharing a passion for the humanities— for the ancient world and for Greece today.

FELLOWSHIPS AVAILABLE

The American School offers funding for secondary school teachers to attend its programs. Multiple scholarships, including the newly founded Fowler-Merle Smith Fellowship, provide teachers the opportunity to experience this outstanding program. See: www.ascsa.edu.gr/programs/summer-session-and-seminars/scholarships-for-educators

★ DEADLINE JANUARY

GET UP CLOSE: INSIDE ANCIENT TEMPLES

“Explaining the construction of an ancient temple is difficult until one stands next to the Hephaesteion and listens as each separate element is named and its function clarified. The Persian Wars are abstract until one stands facing the burial mound at Marathon or surveys the plain at Thermopylae. No amount of reading can replicate the sense of excitement, the depth of understanding, and the increased level of passion that participants in the School’s summer programs bring to their classrooms. It will fundamentally change the way you teach the ancient world.”

—TIM WINTERS, 4-time Summer Session Instructor
Professor of Classics, Austin Peay State University

FIRSTHAND EXPERIENCE: ROWING AN ANCIENT GREEK TRIREME

AMERICAN SCHOOL OF CLASSICAL STUDIES AT ATHENS
FOUNDED 1881 | 54 SOUIDIAS STREET, GR-106 76, ATHENS, GREECE | ASCSA.EDU.GR